

Mark Podolskij

Ambit fields

In this talk we will present recent developments in the theory of ambit fields. Ambit fields are stochastic processes in space-time, which have been originally introduced in the context of turbulence modelling. In this presentation we will review their probabilistic and statistical properties. In particular, their connections to SPDEs and limit theory for high frequency statistics will be presented.